"Packed with illuminating interviews and lyrical movement, "Breath Made Visible" portrays a woman with angels in her feet and innovation in her blood. Long may she rock. New York Times

"An intelligent, beautifully photographed, smartly edited film [...]. Gerber's film reveals not only the important artistic influences Halprin had on such distinguished artists as Merce Cunningham, Trisha Brown, and Yvonne Rainer, but also what a groundbreaking force Halprin was in political and other cultural arenas." BACKSTAGE

"It's no small feat to make a legend life-size and accessible without dispelling her greatness and mystique, yet Gerber pulls off a delicate tightrope act with relaxed ease." SAN FRANCISCO WEEKLY

"[...] stirring, magnificently edited"
SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE

"An admiring documentary portrait of Anna Halprin, a woman so remarkable it is hard to fit her into the confines of a film, let alone a sentence."

"Seeing this film—with its whimsy, warmth, affection, and humor—one comes away with a sense of Anna Halprin as a national treasure."

Wendy Perron, Dance Magazine

"A vivid and haunting portrait" Seattle Times
